

a good future before him. I also understand the Frenchmen were first class people. The fate of Dr. Malmgren is indeed a sad incident, and one does not know what to say about it. Incidents like these seem to be so ~~very~~ unnecessary, and ought to have been avoided. He was a very good man, who had done excellent work during the Maud expedition.

I hope you are quite well and have had a better summer than we have had here. The time I spent in the mountains was almost like winter, but I have had a good holiday with fishing all the same.

With the very kindest regards, believe me, dear Mr. Whitehouse,

ever yours sincerely,

Fridtjof Nansen,
